Paris In 1775.

Crime was so rife in the good cfty of Paris in the year 1775 that half a dozen corpses were shown most mornings in the morgue, and nets were lowered each night from the Pont Neuf to catch the persons thrown over by the cutthroats. Yet the punishments were by no means lenient, and Jekyll gives a horrible description of how he had seen a criminal broken on the wheel without stirring from the balcony of his own spartment, when "Monsieur de Paris" discharged the duty of his office in bag, wig and ruffles and blen poudre.

Why They Went to School. The master of Manchester Grammar hool says that to the question, "Why do boys go to school?" put to a number dars one reply read, "To learn to enjoy life while young." Another boy wrote, "If I didn't go I would not be joyous, as I am now." A third went to school "to help to enlighten other people's burdens," a fourth "to learn bow to get the right change for a ten shilling piece."—St. James' Gazette.

The Scarcity of Statues to Ministers.

Considering how great a part the ministers of all our denominations have played in the national life for at least ten centuries it is simply astounding to find how few are the statues that have been raised to them in public places during the past 500 years or so. While famous men in other ranks of life bave had statues galore erected to their memories in nearly every town in the kingdom, there are today scarcely a score statues all told of ministers, and in nearly each case such statues have been put up within the last twenty years.- London Strand.

Accop's Fables.

The fable springs from the universal by concrete images and emblems and is practically coequal with humanity this form of literature. From Hindusetn the Sanskrit fables passed to China, Tibet and Persia, reaching Greece at an early period, since it is now known that many of the fables Spring line Panama and Straw Hate with those of the east. - New York American Trapped Partridges.

While out shooting partridges with three guns we were walking a small field of roots when we flushed a covey of five birds. They rose singly, and we killed four of them. The fifth, being hard bit, carried on some little way and dropped in a patch of bramble, where we afterward found it. On examination of the five birds two had no feet, only stumps; the two others had only one leg each, and the ofth was the only perfect bird among them. They were all old ones, and the stumps were quite healed, though rather clubbed at the end -London Field.

Soiling a Fish. enough water in a large pot to enable a fish to swim in if it were alive. Add to this water half a cup of vinegar, a tablespoonful of sait, one whole onion, one dozen whole black peppers, one binde of mace. Take any fish and sew it up in a new piece of cheesecloth fitted to the shape of the fish. Put in the water and beat slowly for thirty minutes; then let it boll hard and fast for about ten minutes. Unwrap and serve with drawn butter made from and add to it the juice of half a lemon.

Origin of Quarantine.

In the fourteenth century one-fourth of the population of Europe are com-puted to have died of the buboulc plague, introduced from the east. The first measures to check its spread were adopted by the city of Venice, which appointed in 1348 three guardians of the public health. In 1463 Venice established a lazaret, or contagious disease hospital, on a small island adjoin-ing the city. This was the beginning of quarantine. The word itself means "forty" and implies forty days, the pe riod of detention imposed on vessels at this first Venetian quarantine.

The Iceland Bride.

Iceland, where various interesting and fantastic superstitions abound. there is an ancient custom that every bride must lovite all her friends to dinner in her home, and every article of food must be prepared by the bride herself. If she succeeds in pleasing her critical guests, she achieves not only praise for her own skill, but she helps along her own younger sisters. who are then assumed to be equally well instructed in the intricacles of the culinary art and consequently have their chances of marriage more than

Going Down,
A public school teacher had occasion to correct the pronunciation of a pu-pit of Scotch origin. The lad persist-ed in saying "doon" instead of "down." Finally, the instructor's patience be-coming exhausted, he shouted at the boy: "Down! Down! Down!"

The pupil remained undisturbed by this outburst, but another lad in the rear of the room sprang to his feet, stuck out his hand in a mechanical way, then, exhibiting great embarrans ment, sat down.
"Well, my boy," said the teacher good naturedly, "you must be a foot-ball enthusiast."

"Not exactly, sir," replied the boy. "I run the elevator down to Perkins"."

The Picturesque Bogob Among the wild tribes to be found in the Philippines are the Bogobos, the most picturesque people in the tropics. Their origin is unknown, and all sorts of opinions have been expressed concerning them. One tale told of them is that their first ancestors were all poets and muscians and that the dislike for the practical, which is always noticeable among them, has come down through the generations. Those that have taught among the Bogobos say that, given a song or a poem to learn, they will study and dream over it for hours, but give the Bogobo a problem in mathematics and b) immediately becomes ill and wants to go home.—

An Interesting Item

The Klamath Falls Military Band needs a piano. Just a piano won't do, it must be a good one. To stand the rough usage of dance work and as a club-room instrument, and still be musical enough to meet the severe requirements of solo and vocal accompaniment work, it must be strictly high grade in every particular. Now we can't afford to pay the retail price of such an instrument, and after corresponding with several leading piano houses on the coast, ten per cent disneed of men to express their thoughts count was the best I could get. Now I have been in the music business several years, both as a dealer and piano toner, nowned Edison phonographs and records the natural bone of the fable, and Hin- and I know something about the prices and values of pianos. I know that we can afford the highest grade instrument made if we can only get the benefit of wholessle prices. After considerable correspondence with manufacturers I finally have been fortunate enough to secure the agency for Klamath county for the Baldwin piano, and there isn't a better piano made than the Baldwin. It is necessary, however, for me to buy four pianos in order to get the benefit of the wholesale price.

Now here's the point: I'm not going into the piano business, I've something else to do;but if there are four people in Klamath County who want a first grade piano at the price usually asked for a cheap stencil instrument, here is an opportunity you'll never see again in a lifetime. People don't usually sell pianos for fun, and ordinarily you'll pay the agent a profit of two hundred to five hundred dollars. I ask no profit whatever and I shall sell only the four pianos necessary to secure the wholesale price, This is strictly a cash proposition manufacturers don't sell at wholesale on installments. Now if you know of anyone in Klamath County who is in a position to appreciate such an opportunity, you will confer a favor on the band by referring them to me.

The Peanut.

The peanut grows in the ground, never above it. The flowers above ground are sterile, but after the flower withers a stalk from an inch to two inches long shoots down into the earth and forms the nut. As to the native country of the peaunt the opinions of botanists are divided between Africa and America. It is extensively cultivated in all tropical and subtropical countries, but seems to thrive best in the southern states of the American Union. The peanut crop in the United States alone amounts .b over 300,000, 000 bushels.
